Dear Friends of Koinonia,

Welcome to the 2011-12 Catalog. Learn all the health benefits of pecans on page 3. See more about chocolate as an antioxidant on page 10. Read about Koinonia's commitment to Fair Trade on page 5. And please look on page 12 to order the new edition of The Cotton Patch Evidence by Dallas Lee, featuring a new foreword by Lenny Jordan and a new afterword that was my privilege to pen. Evidence will give you the early history and the new foreword and afterword will give you a glimpse into Koinonia today.

The farm is abuzz. The 2012 Celebration may be a year away, but it's hard to tell given all the activity. Hopefully, you've been reading about the Celebration in Koinonia Briefly, our monthly e-news, or in Koinonia Farm Chronicle, our bi-annual newspaper, or hearing about it from friends. But, just in case you've missed the news, Koinonia will be 70 years old in 2012 and it is also the 100th anniversary of the births of Clarence and Florence Jordan. And we're going to celebrate for a whole month!

The event opens with The Clarence Jordan Symposium on September 28 & 29 followed by a month-long renovation blitz and culminating with the Koinonia Family Reunion on October 26-28. There isn't enough room here to give details of the events, but watch for future mailings or visit the 2012 Celebration page on our Web site (www.koinoniapartners.org).

But it is a long way to September 2012 and we have much to do, food to grow and many people to serve. We depend on sales from this catalog for much of our funding for the whole year. Thank you for making your purchases today and often. Remember that you can also add a donation to your purchase. Best wishes for a beautiful fall and a happy 2012.

Blessings,

Bren Dubay has served the community as director since May 1, 2004. She and others are available to speak to groups or to help you give a presentation about Koinonia.

Koinonia Pecans

Did you know?

Eating one ounce of Georgia pecans (about 19 halves), is the protein equivalent of two ounces of lean meat, a little more than one-third of the daily 5.5 ounces recommended for someone consuming 2,000 calories a day. The US Dietary Guidelines for Americans, on which ChooseMyPlate.gov is based, suggests 2 to 2.5 ounces of nuts (of which Georgia pecans can make up all or part of the total), seeds and soy products a week. For vegans, the recommendation is 7.5 ounces of nuts, seeds and soy a week.*

Stewards Norris Harris and Brendan Prendergast who nurture the trees, manage the harvest and build wonderful relationships with visitors who come to help the community bring in the bounty each year.

Order before December 8 for Christmas delivery

Pecans have a delicate but rich flavor and are a delightful addition to your desserts, salads and main dishes. Our pecans are harvested each fall from our 90 acres of orchards, then shelled and hand sorted.

One rainy Christmas Day, Clarence Jordan was found out in the orchard planting pecan trees.

“What in the world are you doing out here, Clarence?” someone asked. “It’s Christmas Day! It’s raining and you’ll never benefit from those trees. It takes 25 years for them to produce anything.” Clarence replied, “I’m planting them for the people that are coming after me.”

Likewise, farmer and visionary, Brendan rotates our growing herd of grass-fed Pineywood cattle under the pecan trees nourishing both plant and animal and transforming the land for future generations.

Koinonia (Greek for loving community) was founded in 1942 to be a “demonstration plot for the Kingdom of God,” sharing resources, work, and prayer much like the example of early Christians in the Book of Acts.

Our most deeply held beliefs are drawn from Jesus' teachings—peacemaking, radical sharing, and brother/sisterhood among people regardless of race. In the 1950s and 60s, Koinonia was fiercely reviled for these beliefs. Our mail-order pecan business brought us through years of local boycott, and remains our main source of earned income.

Koinonia is also a haven of down-to-earth theology. Founding member Clarence Jordan was a farmer and a Greek scholar. He penned the Cotton Patch Version into South Georgia vernacular, seeking to place scripture in the 'here and now' of his day. His books and lively sermons are still beloved and well-known today.

Our life of service has taken various forms through the years. In the early days, we extended friendship to our neighbors, mostly Black sharecroppers and tenant farmers. Koinonia gave birth to the partnership housing movement in 1968 that later grew into Habitat for Humanity. Our current focus is on “feeding the hungry” not only physically, but spiritually as well. We grow healthy food, offer internships and workshops, and, as always, welcome people to walk this journey with us. Below is a list of ways you can become part of the story!🌱

Ways to Give

Donate! Round Up! Purchase! Sustain! Contribute!

Thank you for purchasing from us and thank you for considering these other important ways to support Koinonia:

Donate with your purchase. Round up your order to the nearest denomination or $100. All donations make a difference.

Purchase monthly and receive wonderful goodies each month throughout the year. Koinonia is not just for the holidays, but all year round!

Contribute to the 2012 Celebration and help us prepare for this coming, very special event.

Ways to Get Involved

Visit: We invite visitors to come year round to participate in our shared life. Koinonia is an ideal location for alternative spring break trips, youth group outings, church retreats, or personal retreat.

Intern: Our seasonal intern program lasts roughly three months. Whether life in community is your vocation or not, the internship can offer insights to life with others and participating in God's kingdom.

Spread the Word: Host a Friends of Koinonia event! Share our publications with your friends! Invite us to your church! Forward our monthly e-mail newsletter to everyone you know! We appreciate you keeping our story alive.
